MRS. GRANT GOES TO RIVERSIDE

A Curious Throng Present-Colonel Fred Accompanies His Mother -Mrs. Sartoris in the City.

New York, Sept. L-Many persons were at Gen. Grant's tomb this morning waiting to husband's last resting place. At noon the largest part of the crowd had departed in belief that Mrs. Grant would delay her visit until evening. Only a few persons, mostly women, were grouped in front of the tomb when another carriage came in view and was driven rapidly toward the place. When the carriage drew nearer the form of Coi. Fred was recognized. The carriage stopped in front of the tomb and was immediately surrounded. The door was opened by the Coionel and he assisted his mother to slight. In her hand she carried a small value. Mrs. Grant was dressed in black with a heavy grape veil hanging from her bomnet and concealing her features. She began to throw it back as soon as he gave her his hand, and walked toward the tomb. (on noticing the gave of the spectators she lowered the veil again and walked slowly to the door of the vault. The guard stood at "present arms," the park policemen stopped their chatter and the gentlemen present raised their hats and stood with bowed heads while Mrs. Grant passed them. She released her arm from that of her son and taking hold of the iron grating stood gazing within as though trying to penetly women, were grouped in front of the stood gazing within as though trying to pen-etrate the three iron and wooden coverings of the General's body and to look once more upon the form of her husband. Mrs. Sartoris did not accompany her mother and brother but was driven to the house in Sixty-Sixth street, where she remained until they returned.

Parnell Explains his Remarks.

Dunners, Sept. 1 .- At a banquet to-night attended by 300 Irish leaders, beside the Irish members of Parliament, Parnell made a speech explaining his recent remarks which have been taken to mean a demand for separation. He declared England could either grant the wish of a right to rule themselves by a Parliament, or make Ireland a crown colony which would have practically the same results. Until this was done the Parliamentary party should try to make it impossible for the English to legis-late on Irish affairs. Outrages such as have become frequent, of late, were to be severe-ly condemned as terribly hurtful to the cause. The absorbing question with Ireland was that of land, and it was to be settled by other methods than this.

For a few years past a woman in Betty Davis has worked in Arthur K. Alle. steam laundry on Kent street. She says she Conditions Which Must Be Complied came here from New York State where she ! left a small home encumbered by a mortgage due in 1884, that she saved her money to pay the mortgage, and in 1883 she had nearly $500 in the bank, when she was induced to lend $450 to her employer. He borrowed it only for a few weeks at first, but did not pay when he agreed to and she accepted his note for the amount for a year, the note being made payable at about the time the mortgage became due on her property. He failed to pay even the interest on the note and postponed payment of the principal from time to time, by making promises to pay her all in time to enable her to pay the mortgage. She believed him to be honest and lent him $30 more, taking his note as security. He failed to pay, the mortgage was foreclosed and she lost her home. Then she placed the notes in the hands of J. W. Holcomb for collection. Mr. Allen and his friends made fair promises to Mr. Holcomb but failed to keep them and he finally brought suit in the Circuit Court. In the meantime the laundry business was placed in such shape that it cannot be reached by an execution against Mr. Allen, and then Mr. Allen's friends told Mr. Holcomb that they did not think the notes could be collected. Mr. Holcomb went on with the suit, however, and yesterday Judge Montgomery rendered a judgment in favor of the plaintiff for $584.85 which includes interest on the notes and $42 due the woman for wages. Mr. Allen allowed the case to go by default and did not attempt to make any defense. the note being made payable at about the collapse of the Southern Confederacy, cotton wood and silk fabrics reached the highest poin n price ever known, while to-day everything history gives any account.

this country will probably doubt the accuracy of the table furnished below showing the prices of greate in the year 1864 as compared with to-day. but we can assure the readers that the prices here given are substantially correct. Everybody who may chance to see this will do well to preserve this paper as it will no doubt be interesting

The greatest fluctuation has occurred in otton goods of all kinds, as will be shown by the two lists of prices. The figures on the left indicate war prices, while those on the right represent the prices of to-day:

75c Heaviest Brown Cotton, Sc. Fair quality BLEACHED COTTONS. 11c. HALL GOODMAN & Co .. vk Mills, 28c. COTTON FLANNELS. 1240. $1.25 best quality... $1 second quality 80c fair quality....

Cotton flannel we now sell sixteen yardhe Battle Scarred Veterans, for one dollar, would have brought eight dollars for the same quality. 3 3 plys $2 2-plys $1 50 2-plys $3 50 Best Brussels $3 Second Quality $2 50 Tapestry Brussels $2 00 Tapestry Brussels $1 75 Tapestry Brussels

We never sold these goods during the war for over fifty cents per yard although the price for the best at that time at wholesale was exactly this price and remained so for nearly the entire year of 1864. We are now selling the very best quality for the extreme ow price of five to seven cents per yard.

People never found fault or complained in the least of the prices of goods during all this time. Ten yards of Calico for five dollars, twelve yards for six dollars. We often sold pieces of Sheetings from thirty-five to room for our new FALL forty dollars per pieca.

Spool Cotton at this time was sold twenty-five cents per spool; Dress-lining selection we have ever placed Cambries 35c; Corset Drills 60c to 75c. on our counters. We have Cut were sold for 50e to 60e per yard.
